Salt Lake City International Airport Launches Terminal Redevelopment Program

In last night's state-of-the-city address, Salt Lake City Mayor Ralph Becker announced the launch of a Terminal Redevelopment Program at Salt Lake City International Airport.

The $1.8 billion project will be phased over 8-10 years and will create a single terminal, concourses, parking and support facilities. The program will address seismic risk, provide right-sized facilities, solve operational issues, improve customer service and will accommodate growth, while maintaining the Airport's competitive cost.
