

SALT LAKE CITY INTERNATIONAL
Airport Guide

Introduction

Salt Lake City has secured its position as a global aviation hub by building a brand-new, $5.1 billion airport that will serve and grow with the region for decades to come. The first phase of The New SLC—which opened on Sept. 15, 2020—includes a new Parking Garage with twice the capacity as the previous garage, the Gateway Center for car rentals as well as express ticket counters, and Concourse A-west. Six weeks later on October 27, 2020, Concourse B-west opened along with the Mid-Concourse Tunnel.

Phase 2 opened on Oct. 31, 2023, and included the build-out of Concourse A-east, with 22 gates and 19 concessions.

Phase 3 opened in October 2024, which included The River Tunnel—connecting A and B concourses—along with 12 new concessions, five more gates and new art.

Phase 4 is under construction and will open in fall of 2026.

Travel Tips

- Weather conditions may affect travel plans. Please call the airline ahead of time to check conditions and status of flights. Allow extra time on rainy, snowy or foggy days and during holidays. Salt Lake City weather conditions are available from the National Weather Service at www.wrh.noaa.gov/slc.
- Check with the airline regarding what time to arrive at the gate for departure. Airlines have different guidelines, but a general rule to follow is to be in the terminal at least two hours prior to the published departure time for domestic flights, and at least three hours prior to the published departure time for international flights.
- Use luggage identification tags on all pieces and be sure bags are marked with a legible name and address. Remove destination tags attached to luggage by the airlines after every flight.
- Carry all prescription medicine, jewelry, currency and important documents in carry-on luggage.
- Park in the correct lot or level of the garage. The parking garage is for shorter visits and the economy lot for longer stays.
- Make sure to turn off headlights, lock the car and take the keys.
- Write down the section and area where the car is parked, or take a picture to easily locate a car when returning.
- Don't leave valuables or any visible packages, stereo equipment, telephones, etc. in the car.
- When a child travels alone, please thoroughly check the guidelines each airline provides. Be sure to inform the airline that the ticket is for a child and ask for special assistance.
- Do not leave luggage unattended.
- Check the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) web page for the latest security screening information at www.tsa.gov.
