

Features of The New SLC

Salt Lake City is securing its position as a global aviation hub by building a brand-new airport that will serve and grow with the region for decades to come. The New SLC is being constructed in two phases, with Phase 1 opening on September 15, 2020. The first phase will include a central terminal, parking garage, an elevated roadway and the west portions of two linear concourses. The second phase build-out, which will be completed 2024/25, includes demolishing the existing facilities and building the two concourses to the east.

The New SLC will feature onsite car rental pickup and return, roomy gate areas with plenty of seating and more areas to charge devices, as well as stunning art installations. Once complete, The New SLC will have 78 gates – including six international gates – all with passenger boarding bridges.

The $4 billion project is funded by airport savings, passenger facility charges, car rental facility charges, federal grants, and airport revenue bonds. No local tax dollars will be spent on The New SLC.

To learn more about The New SLC, click here.